The Newspaper Advertising Bureau.

It was the custom of the advertising agencies to keep their's secret, believing that they style of the art, equal to the average of thereby made it necessary for solver-Austin or San Autonio work, and at tisers to consult them. In 1869, Mesars Geo. P. Rowell & Co. issued the first American Newspaper Directory. In the preface of that work occurred this paragraph:

"We have always believed, and la-bored in the belief, that, as Advertising Agents, it was and should be in our power to be of material service to both advertiser and publisher, and we know no better way to convice them of the value our services than by issuing this book, thus enabling them to communicate without our aid; this we do in the cate without our aid; this we do in the belief that we shall thereby the sooner persuade them of the utility of employing and encouraging our Agency.

The result showed the position to be well taken. Within twelve months their firm was in receipt of a patronage larger than had ever been before accorded to an advertising Agency.

It is fact frequently commented

It is a fact, frequently commented upon, that there is no other business interest of the country, the statistics of which are so thoroughly set forth and made public, as that of making Newspapers: and for this the Ameri us all stand by one another. Only by this means can the business of our can Newspaper Directory has the entire credit.

In 1876, at the World's Fair at Philadelphia, Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co erected a building in which were re-ceived, filed, and exhibited, late copies of every American publication: num boring at that time eight-thousand-onehundred and twenty-nine. Of this en terprise the London Times correspond-ent, in the opening paragraph of his letter of July of that year, writes as follows: "I have frequently had occasion notic: the lig way in which the Amer icans do things, and I do not know that it would be easy to find an apter illustration of it than that furnished by the Newspaper Build-ing in the Exhibition grounds." Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co. point with satisfaction to the two years in which they incurred the greatest expense for extending to the pubcerning the business in which they are engaged (1869, 1876,) as the two in which, notwithstanding the extrao din-ary outlay, did actually produc for them a net income in excess of any other years of their business career. One of the strongest holds which this Advertising Bureau has upon the newspapers, is obtained by their sys-tem of making prompt payments for work done. Newspaper men who have commended this feature, when visiting the office in New York, have been invited to the cashier's desk and shown a conspicuous printed notice posted there, which reads:

ALL BILLS RECEIVED BEFORE 12 O'CLOCK MUST BE EXAMINED AND
